Introduction

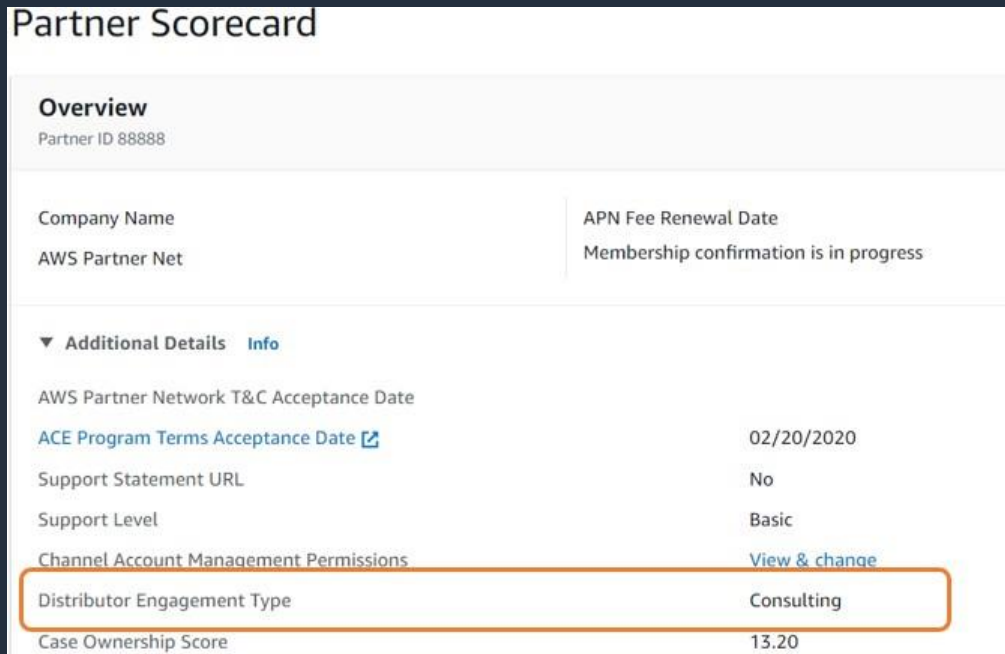

The Following guide is designed for Distribution Sellers to request to engage with their Preferred Distributor per territory.

Distributor Engagement Checklist (for resellers):

1. View your "Distributor Engagement Type" in your Partner Scorecard.
 - In AWS Partner Central, go to the "AWS Partner Paths" section and select "View Scorecard".

- Within the "Overview" section, select "Additional Details" and scroll down to find your "Distributor Engagement Type".

Introduction

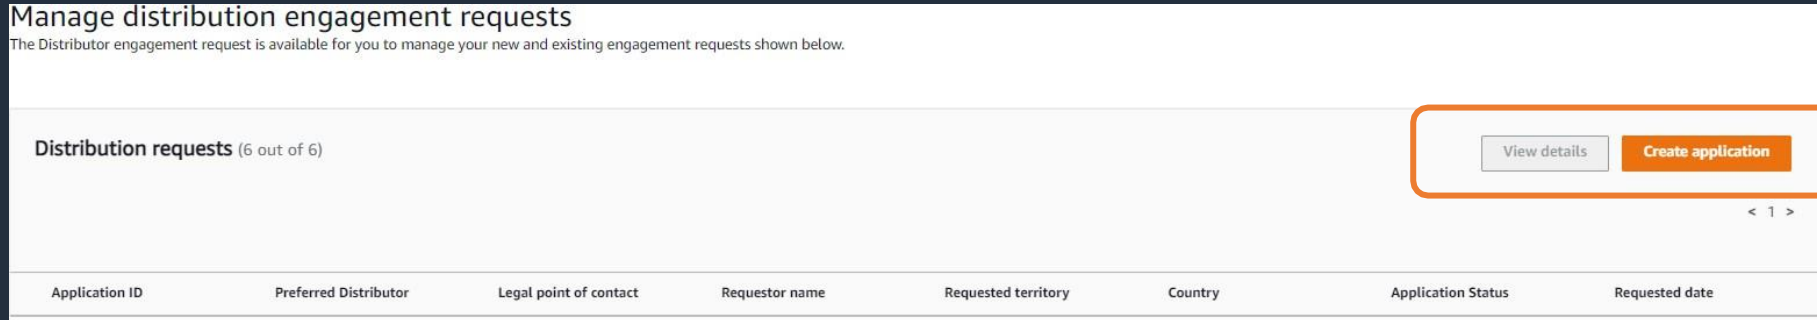

2. Confirm you have the correct Distributor Engagement Type. This information is used to identify how you will engage with an AWS Distributor in the program. If you have the incorrect engagement type, create an APN Support case requesting a change. There are two engagement types:
 - Consulting – Partners pursuing to resell AWS Services alongside their own services.
 - Technology – Partners owning the consumption through Distributors pursuing to add their intellectual property (software, scripts, automation, etc.).
3. Confirm which country(ies) you plan to resell or consume AWS Services via a Distributor.
4. Confirm which Distributor you wish to transact for your chosen country.
 - We recommend that you connect directly with a Distributor prior to submitting an engagement request as Distributors can support your business needs and onboarding process.
5. Identify a legal point of contact. This is someone who should receive legal notices that is not geographically limited. It can be, e.g., a legal contact of your company's headquarters if the headquarters is in a different country. You will need a legal point of contact to review and sign the Distribution Seller Agreement \(DSA\) in the instance you plan to resell AWS Services through an AWS Distributor.

Submission and Management of Engagement Requests

5. Once all fields are complete, click “Submit”. The request will then be automatically sent to the specified Distributor entered in the application. The requestor will also receive an email confirmation that the application was submitted. Distributors have 30 days to approve or reject a request.
6. If the Distributor approves your request, the system will update the application status to “Approved” or “Approved with DSA”. The system will check if you are required to sign a Distribution Seller Agreement \(DSA\). You can view if a DSA is required by selecting on the application ID and clicking “View Details” from your “Distributor requests” dashboard. From there, locate the “New DSA required?” field to check if a DSA is needed to complete the application.
 - If a DSA is required to be signed, the following steps will occur:
 - AWS will send a DSA to the legal POC email specified in the application within approximately 5 business days after the Distributor approves. The application status will change to “Pending DSA Signature” once the DSA is sent.
 - The legal POC will receive a click-through of the DSA from aws@no-reply.com. They will need to review and click to accept.
 - AWS will confirm that the DSA was signed within approximately 5 business days, where AWS will change the application status to “Executed” and the requester will receive a confirmation email that their application is complete. Once complete, you are authorized to transact. If you don’t receive an update within approximately 5 business days of signing the DSA, please reach out to your Distributor or the Distribution-Program-Team@amazon.com alias
 - If a DSA is not required to be signed, then the application status will automatically update to “Executed” where you are authorized to transact with your Preferred Distributor in your chosen territory. The requester will receive an email when the application is complete.
 - If the Distributor rejects your request, the application status will change to “Rejected”. Select the application ID and click “View Details” to see the reason for rejection. The requestor will also be notified via email. After a request is rejected, you can request to transact with another Preferred Distributor in that territory.

FAQs

Q: What is the Distribution Seller Agreement (DSA) and when is it required?

A: The DSA is an agreement between the Partner (i.e., the Distribution Seller) and AWS that authorizes the Distribution Seller to resell authorized AWS Services via an AWS Distributor. For example, a DSA is required when the Distribution Seller intends to resell AWS Services alongside their own services (i.e., a “Consulting” Distributor engagement type). Once the DSA is signed, the Partner becomes an authorized Distribution Seller. There are two versions of the DSA, one specific for India and another for the rest of the globe. A Distribution Seller only needs to sign each of these agreements once in order to be authorized. In other words, you do not need a signed DSA per Distributor or per country.

Q: How do find out my organization’s Distributor engagement type?

A: The Distribution Seller defines their Distributor engagement type as part of their APN profile setup. Distribution Sellers can review this information in their Partner Scorecard. Their Distributor engagement type will also be included in their Distributor engagement request application for reference.

Q: What happens if my requested Distributor doesn’t approve or reject my request?

A: Distributors have 30 days to approve or reject a request. If after 30 days no action is taken, then the application will be “Expired” and you will be notified via email. If an application is expired for your chosen territory, you may submit a new application for that territory requesting another Preferred Distributor.

Q: How can I cancel my application for a Distributor engagement request?

A: You can cancel pending applications for Distributor engagement requests by clicking on the application ID and selecting “View Details”. In the top right-hand corner of the screen, select “Cancel Application”.

If you wish to cancel an executed application with your Preferred Distributor, please contact Distribution-Program-Team@amazon.com to request cancellation.

Q: What is the Multi-Distributor Model and how does it work?

A: Distribution Sellers may select a Multi-Distributor engagement, where in each territory (as defined by AWS in its sole discretion) the Distribution Seller requests to purchase Authorized Services, the Distribution Seller can designate to AWS a single Distributor to be their Preferred Distributor for that territory. Distribution Sellers may designate only 1 Preferred Distributor for a given territory only once per calendar year (including the initial designation).

Thank you.
