	III. Survey objective is vague or the scope covers only one relevant information area.	1
	IV. Survey objective and scope are not determined or are unrelated to the project.	0
	2.3 Target respondent and respondent profile are determined: - Potential residential property buyers are identified as the respondent group. - Relevant working adult / family customer profile or equivalent is identified. - Relevant respondent characteristics are stated.
	I. Target respondent and relevant respondent profile are clearly and appropriately determined.	3	2%
	II. Target respondent is appropriate but the respondent profile is only generally described.	2
	III. Target respondent is only partially relevant or respondent profile is unclear.	1
	IV. Target respondent is not determined or is unrelated to the survey.	0

2.4 Target respondent and respondent profile are determined. • Potential residential property buyers are identified as the respondent group. • Relevant working adult / family customer profile or equivalent is identified. • Relevant respondent characteristics are stated.
I.	A suitable survey methodology is selected and clearly justified according to the target respondent and survey objective.	3	2%
II.	A suitable methodology is selected but the justification is brief or only partially linked to the respondent.	2
III.	A methodology is selected but suitability or justification is weak.	1
IV.	No suitable survey methodology is selected.	0
2.5 Information required for the market survey is determined. • Relevant customer / demographic information is identified. • Relevant budget / product preference information is identified. • Relevant buying consideration / purpose / interest information is identified. • Information selected supports the survey objective.
I.	At least five relevant information requirements are identified and clearly support the survey objective.	3	2%
II.	Three to four relevant information requirements are identified and generally support the survey objective.	2
III.	Only one to two relevant information requirements are identified.	1
IV.	No relevant survey information requirement is identified.	0
2.6 Five (5) market survey questions are prepared. • Five survey questions are provided. • Questions cover at least four relevant survey information areas. • Questions are clear and understandable. • Questions support the survey objective and target respondent.
I.	All five questions are clear, relevant and usable, cover at least four appropriate areas and support the survey objective.	3	3%
II.	Four to five questions are generally usable, with minor weakness in clarity, relevance or coverage.	2
III.	Only one to three questions are relevant / usable or the questions have significant weaknesses.	1
IV.	No usable questionnaire is prepared.	0
2.7 Market survey raw data is processed and analysed. • Main age group is analysed. • Main family / customer profile is analysed. • Property budget range is analysed. • Preferred unit is analysed. • Main buying consideration is analysed. • Buying purpose is analysed. • Purchase interest is analysed. • Relevant totals / percentages are calculated accurately.
I.	At least six of the seven major survey findings are correctly calculated / identified and the analysis is systematic, with only insignificant rounding differences.	3	5%
II.	Four to five major findings are correct, with minor calculation or classification errors.	2
III.	Only one to three major findings are correct or the analysis contains several errors.	1
IV.	Survey data is not analysed or the analysis substantially fails to reflect the raw data.	0

2.8 Market findings, target customer, customer needs and selling points are summarised. • Target customer is derived from survey findings. • Main customer needs are identified from the data. • Suitable selling points are derived from the project information and survey findings. • Market summary is consistent with the analysed data. • Relevant totals / percentages are calculated accurately.
I. Target customer, customer needs, selling points and market summary are all logically derived and consistent with the survey findings.	3	3%
II. Three of the four required elements are appropriately completed with minor weaknesses.	2
III. Only one or two required elements are adequately completed or links to survey findings are weak.	1
IV. Market findings are not summarised or conclusions are unrelated to the survey data.	0
2.9 A suitable online sales platform is selected. • One suitable online platform is selected. • Platform is appropriate for the identified target customer. • Reason for selection is stated and relevant.
I. A suitable online platform is selected and clearly justified according to the identified target customer.	3	2%
II. A suitable platform is selected but the justification is only general.	2
III. A platform is selected but has limited relevance to the target customer or no meaningful justification is provided.	1
IV. No online sales platform is selected.	0
2.10 Online promotional content is planned based on the market findings. • Promotional focus reflects identified customer needs / buying considerations. • Relevant price / unit preference is considered. • Relevant family / own-stay / location / facilities themes are considered where supported by data. • Unsupported claims are avoided.
I. Promotional content clearly reflects at least three relevant market findings and avoids unsupported claims.	3	3%
II. Promotional content reflects two relevant market findings, with minor weakness in targeting.	2
III. Promotional content reflects only one relevant finding or is weakly targeted.	1
IV. Promotional content is not planned from the market findings or is substantially unrelated.	0
2.11 Accurate project and product information is prepared for the online sales collateral. • Correct project name and location are used. • Unit A and Unit B information is accurately stated where included. • RM420,000 and RM520,000 prices are accurately stated where included. • Relevant parking / facilities / amenities / accessibility information is consistent with the source information
I. All key project / product facts used in the collateral are accurate and consistent with the source information.	3	3%
II. Project / product information is generally accurate with one minor omission or non-material error.	2
III. Multiple important facts are omitted or inaccurately stated, but the product can still be identified.	1
IV. Project / product information is substantially inaccurate or unusable.	0

2.12 Relevant selling points, call-to-action and enquiry method are prepared. • At least three relevant selling points are included. • Selling points are supported by project information / survey findings. • A clear call-to-action is included. • A valid enquiry method from the provided information is included.
I. At least three relevant selling points, a clear call-to-action and a valid enquiry method are appropriately prepared.	3	3%
II. Most required elements are present, with one minor omission or weakness.	2
III. Only one or two required elements are adequately prepared.	1
IV. Selling points, call-to-action and enquiry method are not meaningfully prepared.	0
2.13 Five (5) Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) and answers are prepared. • Five FAQs are provided. • Questions are relevant to potential property buyers. • Answers are accurate according to the project information. • FAQ coverage includes useful product / viewing / facilities / price / location information or equivalent.
I. All five FAQs are relevant and the answers are accurate, useful and consistent with the project information.	3	3%
II. Four FAQs are relevant / accurate or all five contain only minor weakness.	2
III. Only one to three FAQs are relevant / accurate or several answers contain significant weakness.	1
IV. No usable FAQ is prepared.	0
2.14 Online sales performance is reviewed using Target, Actual and KPI achievement. • Online Leads: 120 target / 90 actual / 75.00% achievement. • Qualified Leads: 80 target / 65 actual / 81.25% achievement. • Viewing Appointments: 50 target / 35 actual / 70.00% achievement. • Each KPI is correctly identified as below target.
I. All three online KPI are correctly calculated / interpreted and correctly compared against target, allowing minor rounding differences.	3	4%
II. Two online KPI are correctly calculated / interpreted and compared against target.	2
III. Only one online KPI is correctly calculated / interpreted or comparison is largely incomplete.	1
IV. Online sales KPI are not reviewed or are substantially misinterpreted.	0
2.15 Self sales performance appraisal information is identified and compiled. • Assessment period is identified as July 2026. • Completed Viewings, Bookings and New Customers KPI are identified. • Correct Target and Actual data are compiled for the three KPI. • Information is organised for performance appraisal.
I. Assessment period, all three KPI and their Target / Actual data are correctly identified and systematically compiled.	3	2%
II. Most appraisal information is correctly identified, with one minor omission.	2
III. Only limited appraisal information is correctly identified or organised.	1
IV. Relevant self sales appraisal information is not identified.	0

2.16 Self sales KPI achievement is calculated accurately. - Completed Viewings: $30 \div 40 \times 100 = 75.00\%$. - Bookings: $8 \div 12 \times 100 = 66.67\%$. - New Customers: $8 \div 12 \times 100 = 66.67\%$. - Calculation method is applied consistently.
I. All three self sales KPI achievement percentages are correctly calculated, allowing minor rounding differences.	3	4%
II. Two KPI achievement percentages are correctly calculated.	2
III. Only one KPI achievement percentage is correctly calculated.	1
IV. No self sales KPI achievement is correctly calculated.	0
2.17 Actual self sales performance is compared against the respective targets. - Completed Viewings are identified as below target. - Bookings are identified as below target. - New Customers are identified as below target. - The weakest achievement level is recognised appropriately.
I. All three Target vs Actual comparisons are correct and the weaker performance level is appropriately recognised.	3	3%
II. Two to three comparisons are correct but the overall interpretation has a minor weakness.	2
III. Only one comparison is correctly interpreted or the comparison is incomplete.	1
IV. Actual performance is not compared with target or is substantially misinterpreted.	0
2.18 Relevant sales performance issues are identified from the KPI data. - At least three performance issues are identified. - Issues are supported by the online and/or self sales KPI data. - Issues are stated clearly and are relevant to sales performance.
I. Three or more relevant performance issues are correctly identified and clearly supported by KPI data.	3	3%
II. Two relevant performance issues are correctly identified and supported by data.	2
III. Only one relevant issue is identified or issues are weakly supported by data.	1
IV. No relevant sales performance issue is identified.	0
2.19 Sales activity effectiveness is evaluated from the available performance data. - Performance across the sales flow is considered (lead, appointment, viewing, booking, customer). - At least two KPI findings are used as evidence. - Evaluation distinguishes stronger and weaker performance areas. - No additional conversion formula is mandatory unless used correctly.
I. Sales activity effectiveness is logically evaluated using at least two KPI findings and stronger / weaker areas are clearly identified.	3	2%
II. Overall effectiveness is reasonably evaluated using at least one relevant KPI finding.	2
III. Evaluation is vague, weakly supported or only repeats numbers without meaningful interpretation.	1
IV. Sales activity effectiveness is not evaluated.	0

	2.20 Suitable sales best practices are identified. • At least three relevant sales best practices are identified. • Best practices are applicable to the given property sales scenario. • Practices support improvement in lead handling, follow-up, information delivery or customer engagement.
